REASONS TO MOVE IN TOGETHER

AND MAYBE SOME REASONS NOT TO

LETS MOVE ON

TO MORE IMPORTANT CONCERNS FOR LIFE, OUR LIFE. (AS IN LIVING TOGETHER)

I LIKE(D)
YOUR PLANTS

PLANTS.

And of course other important house things as well. (But we need to figure out why we killed all those plants so fast. Or we just suck at taking care of things.)

Create a Plan.

Living together for real wont be easy. People are so different and usually have a different way they like to live, or in better terms a different way to clean up or keep things clean.

(even though I think we are pretty similar).. we should come up with a plan to keep eachother in check: "did you water our plants?", "did you clean the cat box?", "did you throw out the pho yet?". And don't get me wrong I think we might do a good job of it, but maybe we can come up with a plan, or maybe im just being OCD and just like typing so either way idc!

OR, maybe we could even Split Cleaning Responsibilities— "Divvy it up, have a cleaning party together, then celebrate a spotless home with a much-deserved glass of wine," says thenest.com.

(I am being a huge nerd right now, and yes, I did research, because why not?)

I AM WILLING TO GET RID OF MY CLOTHES FOR YOU AND, WELL, ALL MY STUFF.

Downsizing is good, for both of us.

- We should make a plan, a couple plans..
1. Clean, and I don't just mean vacuuming but like cleaning out drawers and cupboards. A thorough clean.
 2. Then make a list or go through stuff to downsize (mostly me). Aka if we call it stuff, we probably don't need it.
 3. Get a circle mirror

PROS:

I have too much stuff anyways.
you can help me get rid of all my showy boob shirts, which makes you feel better than my clothes (what's left) can fit in your closet

I might be a little sad.

You will probably have to deal with me frantically looking for something and have to be the bearer of bad news to say I threw it out

There might be crying involved.

CONS:

Downsizing.. CLOSET TO TRASH

So, you guessed it, lets make another plan.

You might be saying whats with all these plans? But honestly it's just kinda funny to type. But all jokes a side, I (maybe we, idk) should downsize, but mostly me

How do we make a plan about getting rid of clothes? Not sure. But I would seriously like your input on what you think I shouldn't keep, or don't need. We can make a day out of it, but not Sundays, Thats our day.

We all have that one Hollister shirt we have somehow managed to keep since we were 15 years old, probably because it hasn't literally fallen apart in the washing machine, or maybe because I am just so close to being 15, seven years ago..... okay to the point, I need to downsize, I get it.

AFTER THROWING AWAY, A LIST OF THINGS I AM THINKING OF BRINGING, MAYBE (A WAY FOR YOU TO GET AN IDEA AND SAY NO)

- Black chest- we can put shoes in it
- kitchen mixer
- I love my food processor, its white
- Anthropologie plates
- Anthropologie tea cups? (please?)
- Idk I have nice clear mixing bowls
- This is hard because I am scared
- I have a nice wood lazy suzan
- My (wooden framed) window mirrow would look good under your pots
- Blankets
- My fun party glasses
- Wine glasses?
- My cool glass coffee pour over?
- My yellow chairs, but I don't need them because like where would we put them.
- Rolling pin
- Popcorn maker? but I know you're going to say we don't need it
- My tea kettle, bc boiling water out of a pot isn't as cool
- If you would like to do the two carpet thing I have one (I think) is nice....
- I'm sitting in your kitchen looking around and theres really no room for anything so idk
- my polka dot pillows? (no?)
- Henley
- Maybe some nicknacks, books? idk I tbh dont have much I "need"

WE BOTH KNOW HOW TO

COOK
& WE

IMAGINE

Waking up in the morning smelling that smell of fresh bacon, mmn I'm drooling imagining the thought of you cooking me bacon. JK But it will be so great I can bake you random bread loafs of love

Something to remember:

We will not always be making extravagant meals that are restaurant worthy. But maybe to spice things up every once in a while around month 5 and up, we can make Sundays or one/two days out of the week to make something fun and extra special.

Plus, We can cook together! I love our times cooking together. Cooking with you just makes it easier and more fun, and don't get me started on the glorious feeling of having someone to do the dishes with as well. This is the reason love was invented, to help with cleaning of course.

AND WE WILL JK

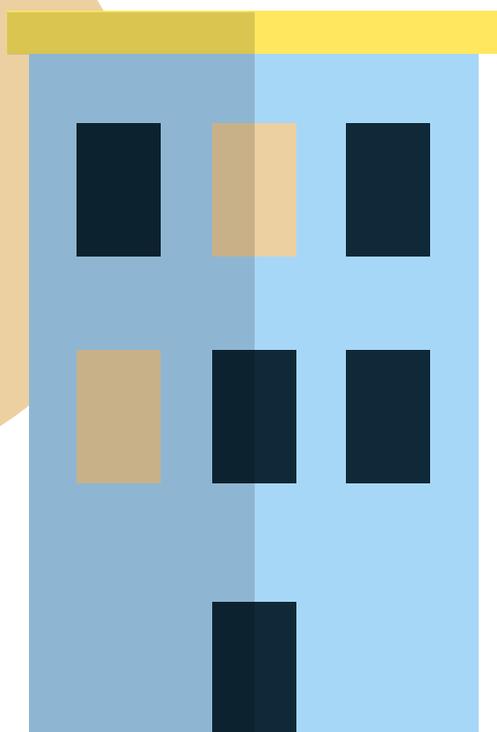

SAVE MONEY

Whaaaat? Yes. It's TRUE

Date night?? Date night is now Netflix and homemade food, and that's often more romantic than any three-star Michelin restaurant. Who needs a man named Jacques serving you dead snails when you could be binge-eating homemade spaghetti in our PJS? (Although, we really outta leave the house some time, right?)

Whats mine is yours,
baby

Again, moving together is going to not be super "easy peasy lemon squeezy". It has to take patience, understanding, and plans, jk but maybe. I think this is going to be one of the hardest things for me, understanding things would be in a way "mine" too if I moved in, but still not really mine. But I always 100% want you to tell me rules you have or help me understand along the way things you like in certain places or do not enter places... (even though its a pretty open house)

The Fridge Issue.

So, because we are going to get living together sharing spaces, that same jar of peanutbutter and the role of toilet paper. Do you think we should plan to work it out? To either split groceries, take turns, or work it out somehow or even just let it happen and figure it out. I just think money issues and not being fair in situations like this is just like when you get too much peanut butter all over your hands; STICKY.
